Hazards

Numerous life-safety hazards associated with a post-fire landscape remain. These hazards include:

Dead and Dying Trees
While BMDSF has been subject to a large-scale hazard tree removal operation, many dead and dying trees remain that pose a significant life-safety hazard. These trees are quickly losing structural integrity due to decay. Please maintain awareness of your surroundings and stay on numbered roads.

Slips and Falls
The fire and subsequent erosion has resulted in loose broken ground across much of the landscape. Uneven ground and burned out stump holes pose hazards. Please stay on numbered roads for your own safety.

Heat
Due to the loss of the forest canopy, the heat hazard at BMDSF during the summer months can be severe. Please bring water with you while enjoying the forest.

Wildlife
Wildlife has returned to BMDSF along with associated hazards. Some of the species present in the forest include: deer, coyotes, foxes, wild pigs, rattlesnakes, and black bears. Please maintain a safe distance from all wildlife.
