

MORE Birds You'll See on JDSF Trees

I'm not a woodpecker, but I use my long, stiff tail like they do, to brace myself as I climb headfirst up trees, spiraling around the trunk as I hunt for insects.

Brown Creeper

Unlike woodpeckers and brown creepers, I'm known for climbing tree trunks head down while looking for bugs. I don't get dizzy being upside down.

Red-Breasted Nuthatch

I'm a woodpecker, and I do live in trees, but you might see me on the ground a lot. I'm not hurt or sick; it's just that the tastiest bugs live in the dirt! I use my strong bill to dig for them.

I climb head down, too, but also take many other positions. We nuthatches are very acrobatic!

Pygmy Nuthatch

Northern Flicker

